

Irvine Nugent, Ph.D., PCC Trainer, Facilitator, Coach

Irvine Nugent, Ph.D. possesses fifteen-plus years in senior leadership roles in organizations of various sizes, stages of growth, and different sectors. He is experienced in challenging business environments and has worked extensively with executive and emerging leaders as an executive coach and consultant. Born in Northern Ireland, Irvine brings to his client a rich and varied experience. Growing up in a society torn apart by division and violence he has seen first-hand the damage done when communication breaks down and people fail to listen and understand.

This has inspired him to help leaders build workplaces in which people thrive and realize their full potential. He is an internationally recognized trainer and top-rated keynote speaker and is one of the few worldwide certified FACS coders, who are experts in reading facial emotions. He has offered courses in the UK, Canada, and the Middle East. He earned his Ph.D. from Capella University with research focused on leadership in times of crisis. He is a graduate of Georgetown University's executive coaching program and is the author of the book, Leadership Lessons From the Pub.

People will forget what you said, people will forget what you did, but people will never forget how you made them feel.—Maya Angelou
